

Live System – from CC Moore

For the last two years the winter has seen me using Live System boilies for the majority of my cold-water fishing topped off by one of the fabulous Northern Specials Pop Ups.

Firstly, the boilies are a natural washed-out yellow colour, which I think can often make a difference especially on venues that see constant angling pressure.

The next noticeable feature is the flavour profile, which is a wonderful fusion of creamy flavours with a rich corn and yeast back note.

The boilies themselves have a nice crumbly texture which allows them to start breaking down even in the cooler water that is likely at this time of year.

One method I employ regularly, especially in the colder months, is to put a couple of handfuls of 10mm, 15mm and 18mm frozen Live System boilies into a freezer bag and add a good glug of the Live System dip to them.

As the baits defrost they draw in some of the liquid, which just adds to the attraction for when they are introduced into the swim.

The syrupy liquid contains a high quality attraction pack identical to that found in the boilies and, being PVA friendly, is useful for solid bag fishing and at this time of year can be utilized with the Live System Stick Mix or Weedbeater mix when casting into decayed summer weed beds!

Live System Weedbeater mix is a product which is unique to CC Moore and one that is becoming increasingly popular as anglers cotton on to the potential that this mix offers. To the thinking angler this mix is a real added edge and when combined in a bag with crushed Live System boilies and Stick Mix really does come into its own.

With more anglers now choosing to fish for carp into the winter it really makes sense to have a system that is versatile and offers you a variety of solutions for the various winter fishing situations you may encounter.

The Live System range certainly does this and will be my number one choice this winter.
